Snanify

Design system v3
October 2026

THE BRAND BOOK.

One family, loud and calm. The colours, the type, the mark and the pieces of Snanify, and the two rules every line is written under.

YOUR GANGA SNAN. FROM HOME.

A digital snan. At an hour the panchang names, you sit for three minutes with a sacred river in India as it runs this morning, make your own sankalp, and send the family a Sankalp Patra with their names on it.

For Indians and the Hindu diaspora far from their river, thirty and over: the US, the UK, Canada, the Gulf, Singapore, Australia. English and Hindi. Most arrive on a phone, at six in the morning, in bed.

Buy mornings

The pack, the price and the press are the clearest things on a selling page.

Sit the snan

Three calm minutes, the same every morning. Only the river changes.

Send it home

The Patra is made to land well in a family WhatsApp group.

The snan, three minutes

Part	Length	What happens
The reading	15s	The river's flow today, and how it ranks for this time of year
The breath	45s	The river rises for four seconds and falls for six
The sankalp	11s	Your own words, held under your thumb while the ink fills
The stillness	60s	The screen goes near black over the night river
The mark	20s	One line writes itself into your register, and the sheet is ready to send

TWO RULES.

1 Never claim a physical rite happened.

The practice is the person's own. Every line keeps priests, ceremonies at a ghat and offerings made on anyone's behalf out of the picture.

2 Never make a promise that is not true.

Speak of what is real: the river, the sky, the sankalp, the family's names. Karma, sins, blessings and the soul stay out of the copy.

Beyond those two, sell the thing. Proud, plain, active. These four are true, so say them loudly:

The river is real

Modelled discharge from Copernicus GloFAS through Open-Meteo, one value a day. A model at a grid cell, never called "measured".

The sky is real

Tithi, nakshatra, the moon and the muhurat, computed at each ghat and checked against Drik Panchang.

The sankalp is real

The person states an intention, in their own words. That is a real practice.

The waters are real

Six real places with real traditions: the Ganga, the Yamuna, the Triveni, the Godavari, the Shipra, the Kaveri.

BOLD. ACTIVE. SIMPLE.

Lead with the verb.

Second person, present tense. “Do your first snan today!” “Send it to the family.”

Short.

One idea a sentence, most under twelve words, numbers as digits. Many readers meet English as a third language, at 6 a.m.

Reverence stays.

The river is a presence, its name capitalised and in sindoor. Jokes, slang and emoji stay out of the product. One exclamation mark a screen at most.

Names.

“The snan”, the “Sankalp Patra”, and a pack is its count: “Eleven mornings”. Snan, sankalp, ghat, tithi and muhurat stay untranslated. Hindi uses everyday words and “आप”.

Build on a noun and a verb

~~Nobody stands in the water for you.~~

The practice is yours.

The one exception removes a buyer’s fear in two words: “No subscription.”

Say it boldly	Leave it out, however bold
“The Ganga, as it runs this morning.”	Anything a priest or a person does for them
“Your Ganga snan. From home.”	A dip, a bath, a ritual performed at the ghat
“Your family’s names, at the river.”	Punya, blessings, sins, karma, the soul
“Three minutes. Every morning.”	“As good as being there”, “holy water”
“Fuller than usual for this time of year.”	“Live” footage, “measured at the ghat”
“Eleven mornings for eleven.”	Statistics about other users

Em dashes stay out of every line: use a comma, a colon, a full stop or parentheses. In rupees the hook reads “Eleven mornings for ₹501.”

ONE RED. ONE YELLOW.

Sindoor

The one red. The press, the river's name, the sun, the seal, the bindu

The one yellow. Where you pay or share, light on the water, the band's words

Teal

The river. The waves, the gauge's deep end

Ink

Widths 1 : 2 : 4 : 2 : 1. Teal stepping out of paper.

Flat colour, one job each. Ink sits on marigold, never marigold on paper (about 1.5:1). White sits on sindoor. Marigold is the same by day and by night. Ads use the day column; every value, night included, is in brand/tokens.json.

ECZAR AND MARTEL.

The headline: Eczar 800, tight capitals, 0.95, -0.01em. One a screen.

YOUR GANGA SNAN. FROM HOME.

Hindi has no case: Eczar 800 at a line height of 1.22

आपका गंगा स्नान। घर से।

Headings: Eczar 700, sentence case. Body: Martel Sans 400.

Running full.

Fuller than usual for this time of year.
इस समय के हिसाब से सामान्य से भरी।

Family	Weights	Job
Eczar	400 to 800	Display: headlines, headings, the wordmark, the seal. Latin and Devanagari. fonts.google.com/specimen/Eczar
Martel Sans	400, 600, 700	Text: body, buttons, labels, tables. Latin and Devanagari. fonts.google.com/specimen/Martel+Sans
Noto Serif Devanagari	400, 600	Hindi on drawn images (the Patra, link cards), so conjuncts stack: अनिल शर्मा

Rules

- Buttons and labels: Martel Sans 700, sentence case.
- Tracked capitals are retired. Every word is set as written.
- Eczar has no italic: text stays upright, and a faked cut is the tell.
- Indic scripts take their own, taller leading.
- Hindi numerals are Devanagari. Figures line up in tables.

THE HORIZON SUN.

lockup-light

lockup-dark

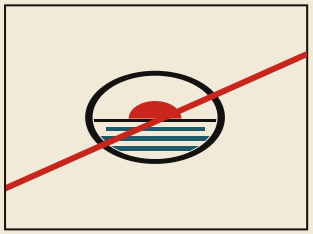

lockup-on-marigold

SVG and PNG of each, and the mark and the wordmark alone, are in brand/logo/.

Clear space: half the mark's height on every side (the dashed line). Smallest: the masthead's lockup, a 30px mark beside a 24px word. Below 32px the mark uses its small cut.

An ink ring on paper, a sindoor sun cut by an ink horizon, three teal bands. The wordmark is Eczar 800 at -0.015em, its i dotless under a sindoor bindu.

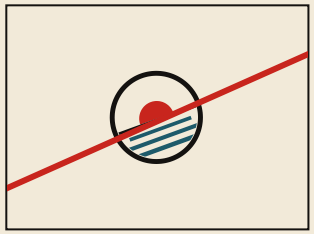

Keep it as drawn

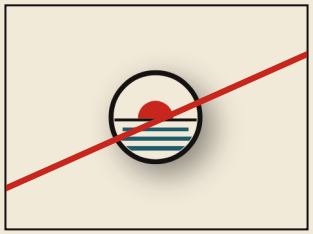

Stretched or squeezed

Turned

A soft shadow or a glow

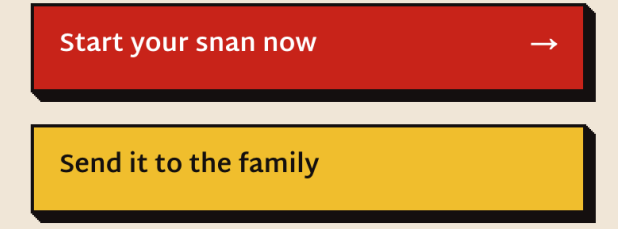

Tracked capitals

Set in another face

SIX PIECES.

The press

A sindoor block on a hard ink wall 6px deep. It sinks flush when pressed. The marigold face is only “Send it to the family”.

One per screen

The seal

A round sindoor stamp, marigold Eczar 800, a dashed ring, turned a few degrees. The price, or the morning badge.

Those two uses, never under 66px

The band

Ink with marigold words, turned -2°, running off both edges. It says the one thing to do.

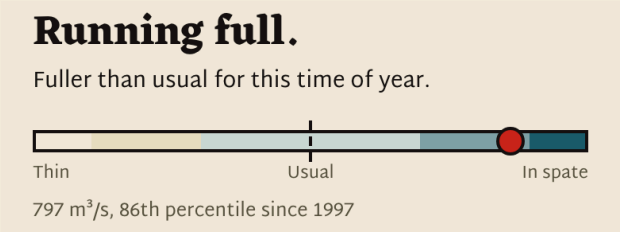

One per page, selling pages only

The label

The matchbox label: marigold, a 3px ink frame, a thin sindoor rule inside.

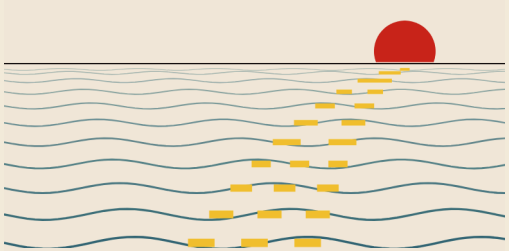

The eleven-morning pack only

The gauge

How the river runs, without numbers: five fills, a dashed “usual”, a sindoor dot for today. The exact figure sits small beside it.

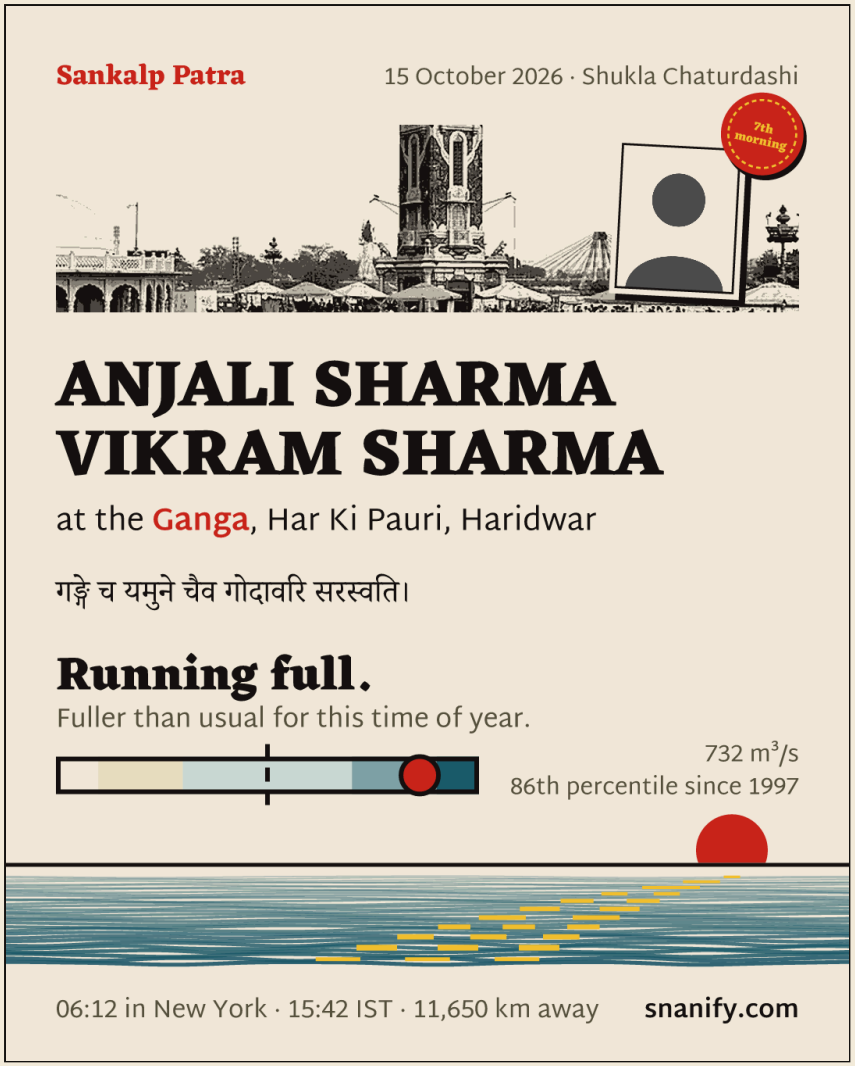

Wherever a river figure appears

The river

Teal waves, an ink horizon, the sindoor sun sitting on it, a marigold path of light. The brand’s living element.

Below the press, at the foot of every screen

THE SANKALP PATRA.

One sheet per completed morning, made to land in the family WhatsApp. Eleven mornings make eleven sheets to send.

What it carries

- Up to five household names, one per line, in capitals
- The water, the day's figure and its rank beside the gauge
- The tithi, the distance to the water, the time in the person's zone and in IST
- One chosen prayer, printed as written
- The person's photograph pinned on the ghat, when they gave one
- The morning badge, from the second morning on
- The river at the foot, engraved from that day's flow

The sheet sells nothing. The band, the label, a price and a pack count stay off it.

390 WIDE FIRST.

Over ninety percent of readers arrive on a phone, at six in the morning, in bed.

Design at 390 by 844. Hold at 360, look right at 430. Desktop is the adaptation.

The fold is a contract. Headline, band, seal and press sit above 660 at 390 wide, in both languages.

Thumb-sized. The press is at least 56px tall, every other target 44px.

Every control shows a press. A phone has no hover.

Page width holds. Nothing scrolls sideways; tables become stacked rows.

The river is cheap. SVG lines, transform-only motion, paused off screen.
